good buying orders on the exchange and few if any sellers.

The opening quotations as recorded was 10516 (a 105, the purchasing being too brisk to allow of the intertening prices to be obtained by the official reporters. Heavy blocks of the stock were readily absorbed, the buying being encouraged by renewed assurances from Washington to the effect that refined sugar would be properly protected.

When 10514 was touched there was some realizing, causing a reaction to 1043. The lower figures induced fresh buying and an advance was made to 10754, which was 5% per cent above the closing figures of Saturday. In the final dealings, there were sales to realize profits, which sent the price down 134 per cent, leaving a gain on the day of 115. The preferred stock sold up $14, to $755, reacting $4$ per cent, leaving a gain on the day of 115. The preferred stock sold up $14, to $755, reacting $4$ per cent, at the close.

Chicago Gas was affected unfavorably by the report that an application by the company for an injunction to restrain the attorney general of illinois from bringing the quo warranto suit has been levied.

A rumor was also current to the effect that the been levied.

Arumor was also current to the effect that the Mutual Fuel and Gas Company would be given a franchise to extend its main into the territory of the Chicago Gas Company. As a result a drive was made on the shares, which brought out some long stock and sent the shares dewn 2 per cent. A raily of 56 took place during the afternoon, of which 36 was long in the final tusding, the decline from Saturday being 156 per cent. FOREST INN.

and rushing frantically in and out of the bouse in the direction in which his master had departed, they soon came to understand that the animal wanted some one to follow stone's laborer, and that he had reached that place in the early morning, having left knaresborough soon after six. Indeed, he was recognized as having been at Knaresbori.im. Two men, therefore, accompanied the retriever across a fallow or two, up a narrow lane by the outskirts of a copse, out on to the lane by the outskirts of a copse, out on to the edge of an open moor.

After a while they reached the fringe of another corpse, where, to their horror and grief, they discovered the body of their master, flat on his back, shot dead, and lying in a pool of blood. His pockets were riffled and his fowling piece and powder flask were also missing. In the first paroxysm of horror they gave little thought as to who had done the deed. They made no search their

ORGANAL WEAKNESS

Immediately cured and full vigor restored. This distressing affliction, which renders life a burden and marriage impossible, is the penalty paid by the victim of improper intungence. The most chaste must acknowledge that the passions are the great magnet by which the whole world is attracted. Destroy them and what have we? Man is no longer interested in the opposite sex; the interchange of that bliesful repose which now attracts and interests the whole world exists no longer, man ceases to be what God made him; the world is no longer interesting to him, and remorse and disappointment are his constant companions. Consult us at once and you will find the sympathy and relief that you positively require.

MARRIAGE.

Married persons or young men con-templating marriage, aware of physical weakness, less of procreative powers, impotency, or any other disqualifica-tions, speedly relieved. He who places himself under our care may confide in our honor as goutlemen and confidently rely on our skill as physicians. We have had many years' experience in hospitals and torivate practice and are graduates of the most eminent medical colleges of the United States.

YOUNG MEN

Who have become victims of solitary vice, that dreadful and destructive habit which annually sweeps to an untimely grave Lousands of young men of exalted talent and brilliant intellect, may call with tall confidence.

We address all those who have injured themselves by improper indulgence and solitary habits which ruin both mind and body, unfitting them for business, study, society, or marriage.

"Consequently there was no witness forth-coming who could prove that on the ist of September, the day the murder was committed tioning where I had seen him before. Now I know; the white beaver hat brings it all back vividity. What has been stated is true; he was on the moor that evening, and I meet him. I the prisoner was far away from Knares-borough—thirty miles or more. Indeed, you recollect that he binself admits that he can only recall one individual to whom he spoke on the evening of the 31st of August, the night before the commission of the crime. repeat, it is true, every word of it. He called after me to know if he was right for Skipton, and he asked me the time. I can prove it by His story will be fresh to your memories. He states that while crossing a moor by an obscure track toward the close of day, in order to reach Skiption that night, he passed a gentleman, but having done so by some thitry yards, he thought he would ask if he was on the right road. He called hack therefore

The parson's further efforts at explanation were drowned in commotion and calls for silence which resounded through the court. The trial was arrested; the judges agreed to postpone the further hearing to the end of the day, until Mr. Merryday could obtain his journal, which he asserted was always kept under lock and key at his home. He wrote a hurried letter to his wife, inclosing the key of the sacred drawn. hurried letter to his wife, inclosing the key of the sacred drawer. A messenger was dis-patched with it to Bishton, and it was near four o'clock in the afternoon ere the reverend gentieman was armed with the written evi-dence of his journal. With that he entered the witness box, and under cath repeated his statement, verifying it by his diary, which was handed from counsel to judge and by judge to jury; and there, under date August 31, they read the following entry:

""Returning home across the moor, encoun-

31. they read the following entry:

* Returning home across the moor, encountered young man wearing a white benver hat, and though shabbily dressed, he had the bearing of a gentleman. When we had passed each other some little way, he called back to me, and I here set down what was said between us, word for word, for I find I am enabled and in:pelled to do so by the strangest feeling that ever possessed me. I can remember every syllable, and I cannot imagine why such trivial sentences should be impressed so literally on my mind. But for this extraordinary feeling within me, I should not dream of entering so seemingly unimportant a matelient to do more than fancy that he might have been a clergyman. Oh! gentlemen, if we could but have found that good man—if we could but have found that good man—if we could but have found that good man—if we could by any miracle hope that he should remember so trivial an incident, and if — What more the cloquent counsel would have a dided was never known, for as the last words fell from his lips the solemn, listening court was startled by some one in the background trapidly calling out in an excited voice:

"I am that man: I recollect the occasion: I can swear that I met the prisoner; he is the person, without a doubt, whom I encountered on Bishton moor on the evening of August 31.

My name is Hugh Merryday. I am rector of Bishton St. Mary. I have been staring at the prisoner as he stands in the dock, and questions.
